

THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18

It is a pity that Dan Manning can't leave some of his brains with the cabinet. In the administration of the government the cabinet needs it.

Eastern working men think it no hardship to be bossed about by their leaders, whereby they lose time, money and situation; but they do a good deal of grumbling because they have to work ten hours a day for moderate wages.

The president's wits are taxed to the utmost to find five men for commissioners under the later state commerce bill. He wants men who know more about the bill than congress does. But such men should not be hard to find among business classes.

Mr. Moody, in an address in Chicago the other day, made some sharp hits in noting the excesses some people had for not regularly attending church. He said they didn't like the church because there were mean men in it, and suggested they vote to the board of trade, to political meetings, to theaters and to saloons, because there were no mean men in those places.

A democratic paper makes this comment: "So far as we are able to discover from the president's message, the chief distinction drawn between the Mexican pension bill, which he signed, and the 'Dependent Pension bill', which he vetoed, is that greater time has elapsed since the Mexican war than our Civil war. True. But does that make the one right and the other wrong? Of course it doesn't. But the Cincinnati Enquirer must remember that the bill he signed benefited the south, and the bill he vetoed, the north. The president cares more for southern good will than for northern favor."

It was a very odd compliment that the administration paid Mr. A. K. Delaney by giving him the collectorship for Alaska. Could anything be more chiding than this? Defeated for congress, driven from the United States attorneyship, all on account of his bad political methods, and then to hold the wounds of the Dodge county political ring master, he is sent to Alaska, where his political tricks and unsavory reputation will not count against him. It is said that General Bragg got Delaney this position. Very likely. It is just like one of Bragg's rough jokes, and one of his ingenious methods to get his personal enemy out of the country. Alaska will prove a good place for Delaney. He will have nothing to do but to try to keep himself warm; to study the beauty of the everlasting snow-topped hills, and to ponder how utterly unprofitable are the schemes and scandals of political bosses.

Soberly considering the matter it is a question if high license will not effect more of a temperance reform than prohibition can at the present time. Here are some figures that are official: "In the prohibition state of Vermont there were 494 liquor dealers who paid the United States tax in 1885 and 673 in 1886. In New Hampshire, also a prohibition state, there are 1,354 liquor dealers, or one to 256 inhabitants. In the typical prohibition state of Maine there are over 1,000 dealers paying the United States tax, and as in the other states, the most of them are regular saloonkeepers. In the prohibition city of Providence there were a short time ago 404 saloons, or within forty of the number existing when the prohibitory law went into force." Prohibition would be a splendid thing if it would prohibit, but it fails from one cause or another to do the work it ought to do. Under these circumstances wouldn't high license—a license high enough to be felt in liquor circles—be the best thing at hand? It would seem that wisdom would dictate an affirmative answer.

Senator Spooner has made a wide reputation on his funeral orations, as has already been stated in the Gazette. The New York Sun, speaking of Mr. Spooner's eulogy on General Logan as likely to be his last funeral oration, closes its complimentary editorial as follows: "It was doubtless the best effort of the day, judged by rhetorical standards. Marc Anthony, turning Caesar's words against his enemies, hardly did a bolder thing than Spooner in telling how Logan never took a pension for his wounds, because he had, as a senator, to vote on pension bills, and that this fact should prompt congress to give Mrs. Logan a pension of $2,000 a year. The Wisconsin senator is a terror in debate, but in a funeral speech he is gentle as a dove. His voice runs wet and salt with tears, and even our own Evans had to apply his handkerchief to his eyes while Spooner was speaking. The Wisconsin senator now dreads the prospect that he will fall into the place that Senator Anthony had so long of being the best funeral orator of the senate. It is a fact not much known that Spooner, in his college days, was earnestly besought to enter the ministry, because his impressive style of oratory would be sure to make him a pulpit success. His father was one of the best lawyers in Wisconsin, and the senator inherited a legal mind. To this he probably owes his place in the senate."

CARPENTER AS A PREACHER.

The following items are going the round of the press and is credited the New York Sun:

It is a curious fact that the late Matt Carpenter, who represented Wisconsin brilliantly in the senate, at one time decided to enter the ministry, and began the study of theology. He had lost his sight for a time, and there are many old people now living in the western towns where he spent his first ten years at the bar who can well remember the earnest prayers and eloquent talk of the young lawyer. (Carpenter was then a tall, spare, black eyed fellow, handsome as Lucifer and as dangerous.

Rufus Choate sent him to New York to put his eyes under treatment and he stuck to the law. His determination to go into the ministry was a fleeting surrender to deponency, but his friends always cherished their dreams of his future fame as the great blind preacher of the west. It was at this period in his life that Carpenter acquired his fondness for Scripture reading, a trait which explains the simplicity and clearness of his speeches in the senate and at the bar.

There are a good many onerous statements in the foregoing paragraph. Carpenter was not black-eyed, but was blue-eyed. He never began the study of theology, except to read the Bible, especially the epistles of Paul, which he regarded as the greatest prose composition ever produced. The statement that he used to pray and talk at religious services, is erroneous. The nearest he ever came to making public addresses in church was while he was in Beloit. At one time, somewhere between '43 and '50, a Presbyterian minister by the name of Alfred Eddy, formerly of Niles, Michigan, preached in Beloit, and Carpenter heard him preach a number of times and rather took a fancy to him. He wanted Mr. Eddy to preach some sermons from certain of Paul's powerful statements in Romans, but the minister was modest, and thought that in such an attempt he might get into deeper water than he could wade in, but said if Carpenter would write the sermons he would preach them. Matt wrote several sermons on the doctrine taught by Paul, and sure enough, Mr. Eddy delivered them much to the satisfaction of his hearers and to the great amusement of Carpenter.

Another erroneous statement is that Rufus Choate sent Matt to New York for treatment. Choate did no such thing, and Carpenter never went to New York for that purpose.

KNIGHTS NOT POLITICIANS.

Powderly Makes a Few Remarks About the Latter Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—General Master Workman Powderly said Thursday night that the order of Knights of Labor must not be dragged into politics. If local assemblies elect delegates to the Cincinnati convention, said the master workman, they must do so for the locals that sent them there, and not for the order in general. The Knights of Labor are an organization with no representation in that convention, and no political or otherwise adopted there will not be regular or binding upon the members of the Knights of Labor.

"Personally, I am a protectionist," said Mr. Powderly, "but the question of protection or free trade is not the most important one to be discussed by workmen in their efforts to solve the problem of industrial emancipation."

The Slayer of Edward Doherty.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Capt. Unger, who killed Edward Doherty, testified in his own behalf Thursday. He said that Doherty was in the habit of getting angry and being very violent when he was drunk. On the night of the killing Doherty was particularly angry and charged Unger with being a thief. Said Unger: "I told him not to call such names. As that Doherty struck me with his fist while I was fixing the fire with the poker, I jumped to my feet and struck him with the poker. He grabbed a knife from the table and struck at me. I ran from him and thought of the cool chest I ran to it and seized a hammer and struck at him as he was running at me. The flat end of the hammer struck him on the head. He staggered at me once and wounded me on the hand (Unger here pointed to the cut.) I ran six or eight feet to the top of the head with all my strength. He staggered and fell on the sofa and I saw that he was dead." Unger then said he disposed of the body secretly so as to avoid the disgrace.

The New Jersey Wrangle.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—In the joint session of the legislature Thursday two more ballots for United States senator were taken. Thus was the choice between the votes of Wednesday, Sewell and Albert each receiving 55, and the remaining 11 votes being divided among eight other candidates. After the voting in joint session for United States senator the assembly recovered and proceeded to take up the majority and minority reports on the two contested seats, the decision in which promises to affect the senatorial question owing to the closeness in the strength of the two parties on joint ballot. The majority report recommended the unseating of the Democrats, Messrs. Walter and Tuerley, and the seating of their opponents. It was a furious and protracted struggle, but the Democrats were finally victorious. The minority report being submitted for the majority, and the Democratic contestants seated by the close vote of 20 to 20 in each case.

Senator Sullivan's New Company.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Minnesota Thresher company was organized here Wednesday. This is a Boston corporation, and is said to control the credits of the Northern Car company, of Stillwater, Minn., which went into a receiver's hands some three years ago, in such form that its organization is really the reorganization of the old company. Among those present at the meeting were John J. Sullivan, president of the Northern Car company, J. H. Bouvier, and W. A. Rust, of Boston; D. B. Dwyer and E. F. Lawrence, of the First National bank of Chicago, and Senator Sullivan. The officers elected for the new company are: D. B. Dwyer, president; J. H. Bouvier, vice president; R. A. Kirk, secretary, and F. A. Prince, of Stillwater, treasurer. The capital stock of the new company is $5,000,000.

Another Multitasked Corpse Found.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—At Edgington, Pa., a village between Schuylk and Bristol, in the line of the New York division of the Pennsylvania railway, Farmer John Thurston morning found the naked trunk of a man on the edge of a pond. The trunk was wrapped in paper and tied onto, length and width, with light cord. The head and arms were drawn off and the lower extremities hacked off. The trunk was shipped to Bristol at noon, where an inquest was immediately ordered, attracting hundreds of people. The most important testimony was that of Dr. Wilson. He said an examination showed that life had not been extinct over twenty-four hours, and that death was not from any ordinary cause.

Prevented by a Better Cure.

Many persons are afflicted with skin eruptions, boils or ulcers. Brandreth's Pills taken freely will in a short time effect a complete cure of all such troubles. Ulcers of long standing have been cured by them. Carbuncles have been checked in their incipient stages by them. The worst skin sores, bed sores and the like have been driven from the skin by them. Only begin in time and a few of Brandreth's Pills will prevent many a sickness. Taken freely they will cure any disease.

AS STRANGE AS FICTION.

A MINNESOTA CONVICT TELLS A REMARKABLE STORY.

He Sacrifices His Liberty for Life to Save His Wife—Ghastly Occurrence at a Death in Washington City—To What Base Uses an Editor May Come—News Novelties of Various Sorts.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18.—Members of the legislature visited the state prison at Stillwater Thursday. Michael Kelly, convict, gave to Ignatius Donnelly a statement of his case, and of some strange occurrences at the prison for the murder of Barney Lamb, of St. Paul, in 1874. He now says the killing was done by his wife; that he kept it secret to save her. His story is as follows: "The facts in the case are that two very unfortunate men, Barney Lamb, was my near neighbor. We became involved in a quarrel and fight. Before we commenced to fight I had my cavalry sword with me, which I gave to my wife to take to the house, but she did not do so, and when Lamb had me by the hair of the head and held me opposite his waist my wife, supposing he would do me bodily harm, cried to me to take up the sword, and she handed it to me, and that was the time the fatal wound was given with the sword. But the sword was not in my hands. I did not divulge this fact at the trial, for I had no fear of being convicted, as I knew I did not kill Lamb, and yet I was moved by a powerful incentive most sacred to me, next to my God. She was my wife, mother of my children, and I loved her."

MIRACULOUS BELL-RINGING.

All the Bells in the House Announced the Death of a Young Lady.

WASHINGTON CITY, Feb. 18.—A remarkable coincidence happened Wednesday morning at the death of Miss A. L. Duffy, a daughter of Capt. O. E. Duffy, the patent attorney. Miss Duffy had lain in a dying condition for several hours, being surrounded by the members of her immediate family. She was conscious to the last and talked calmly with those about her until a moment or two before the end. The watchman had scarcely made the announcement that she was dead when a servant from below entered the room in answer to a summons of the full bell. No one had rung, and the peculiarity of the circumstance was in the fact that all of the six bells placed in the dining-room and communicating with the different rooms of the house had rung violently at the instant when the death took place. The bells, with one exception, had not rung since Mr. Duffy moved to his present home, the wires connecting them being broken. The affair created a feeling of awe over the household, and no explanation of the mystery has been made.

Newton Went Dead.

MANAUSKING, Wis., Feb. 18.—About four weeks ago the body of an old man was found about one mile south of Sherry Station, near this city, lying beside the railroad track. When found life had been extinct for some hours. At the inquest it transpired that the deceased met his death by being struck by the midnight express. At the inquest two men swore that the deceased was one John Newton, formerly a resident of Junction. All the witnesses had been near neighbors of Newton, and a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts by the coroner's jury. Newton's cause and nephew being telegraphed for came and took the body to the depot. Newton was buried at Stevens Point. John Newton had suddenly appeared at Hurley, Wis., and had written his relatives that he is alive and well. F. F. Ooster, chairman of the town of Carleton, at once went to Hurley to verify the story, and found Newton at that place, and at work. Ooster and Newton have been friends for years, and it is now a settled fact that Newton is alive and will not be killed by any coroner's jury or newspaper.

An Editor on the Dissecting Table.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—Mr. Ernest W. Rau, a German, editor of a Bavarian weekly paper, called Doersche Wechenblatt, died Wednesday morning at the home of Warren Kieffer, with whom he boarded. A certificate of death was duly issued and a burial permit given by the health commissioner. Thursday afternoon word was received at police headquarters that Rau's body was in the dissecting room of the Maryland university. Upon investigation by the police it was discovered that the body had not been buried at all, but had been sold to the medical college by Kieffer for $10. Kieffer was arrested. He explained that he did not sell the body for his own benefit, and that he was only carrying out the wish of Rau, and did not know he was violating a law. The post mortem developed the fact that death was due to exposure and excessive drink.

Escaped a Horrible Fate.

KINZUA, Pa., Feb. 18.—Eddie Cocco, aged 16 years, was found lying apparently dead on the top of an oil tank near the village of Sunday. A number of physicians were summoned, who agreed that life was extinct and that death had resulted from inhaling the poisonous gas rising from the crude oil. The boy was confined and prepared for burial at the home of his parents near Corydon, Pa., and service was in progress Wednesday afternoon, when signs of life were shown in the supposed corpse. He was removed from the coffin, medical aid again summoned, and Thursday he had given every hope for his complete recovery.

A School Teacher's Romance.

TOLUO, Ill., Feb. 18.—Thomas Dale is a school teacher near Catlin, Vermilion county. Some years ago he was teaching a school in that locality, which was attended by a young girl whom he had occasion to severely whip. The girl's parents caught the teacher of the school and arrested him, and he was convicted and fined. The teacher's romance. Time has since then worked wondrous changes, and the cards are now out for the wedding of the professor and his pupil.

Confessed His Stooling.

GALVESTON, Tex., Feb. 18.—There is much excitement among the Odd Fellows here over the stooling of Thomas M. Joseph, late treasurer of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of this state. He has confessed having stolen the whole of the lodge fund—$23,135, having sunk it in mining speculations. He has been mayor of this city, is 70 years old, has a family of grown children and has always been a good citizen. He is said to be the possessor of a large fortune, and it is possible for vigorous prosecution to do so.

Murdered and Cut to Pieces.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Feb. 18.—Wednesday night Mrs. R. P. Price, a respectable old lady, was brutally murdered at Fond, Wis., just across the line, by a brute who chopped and mutilated her body. The object was robbery. Her husband was away. The murder was witnessed by a little girl. The man is now in jail but refuses to give his name.

OTHER MADISON ITEMS.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 18.—In the assembly one hundred bills were introduced this morning, one making the board of University regents to consist of fourteen members, five of whom shall be chosen by Wisconsin University Alumni association; also, making the governor, state superintendent of public instruction and president of the university members of the board of regents.

Prohibiting druggists from selling liquor except on the presentation by the buyer of a certificate of some physician stating it to be necessary.

To appropriate $50,000 to pay all injuries arising from the capital calamity in 1883.

In the senate, also a large number of bills were introduced, among them being the following:

To allow the members of the Wisconsin National Guards, $2 per day when in actual service and to authorize the quartermaster general to provide 100 tents to be used at such times.

Providing that when a wealthy man marries and dies his wife's property goes to his wife's relatives when she dies.

To compel operators of Pullman dining palace cars to pay a license.

To compel insurance companies of other states to pay an equitable tax in Wisconsin on the same basis as Wisconsin companies.

There was also one introduced to restore capital punishment; one to appropriate $50,000 to the Milwaukee county insane asylum; and one to appropriate $1,000 annually to the Woman's Relief Corps; and also $1,000 for charitable purposes among needy soldiers and their families.

Credit is due the German women and physicians for first using Red Clover blossoms as a medicine. Price 50 cents of Pentecost & Davidson, opposite postoffice.

Zachariah the Torpedo-Blast Man.

Lieut. Zachariah, whose experiments with a dynamite throwing gun and a submarine torpedo at Fort Lafayette have attracted so much attention lately, is a well built, middle aged man with dark hair just beginning to show a tinge of gray. He makes a friend of everybody he meets by his kindly and modest manners. In spending of the progress in his work by which he has advanced from throwing a charge of fifteen pounds of dynamite to a distance of half a mile to the throwing of 300 pounds of nitro-gelatin to a distance of over a mile with safety, he always uses the pronoun we, referring to the workmen who assist him. He uses the name of the workmen much more frequently than he refers to his own efforts. He lives with his family in a comfortable cottage in the officers' row at Fort Hamilton, where, those of his friends who know him intimately say, he gives dinners that are even more perfect in their way than his experiments with engines of war.—New York Sun.

Zachariah's Glass of Champagne.

When at Fort Hamilton I had the honor of serving under the late Sir Alexander Malet, and certainly a more kindly chief was not to be found in the service. His legation was accredited to several of the minor courts, and at one of them I was even more appreciated than my chief. This was why. Occasionally there was a ball at the court, where we were expected to attend. At my first ball supper I found myself at a table next to a grandee, I forgot his name and rank. The servant came to pour out champagne. Now, I detest this wine, so I shook my head. The grandee nudged me and said: "Let him pour it out." This I did, and he explained to me that the potentate whom he was serving was never given to his guests more than one glass. "So you see, if I drink yours I shall have two," he said, and he suited the action to the word. After this there was to be quite a struggle to sit near me at court suppers.—London Truth.

Winter Roads in Norway.

In riding along the roads you see at fixed intervals stones with inscriptions on them, more or less extensive, sometimes simply initials and sometimes names with numbers. These are placed there to show who is bound as the owner of the land to keep the road in repair and to keep it open in the winter, and for what distance his obligation extends. This duty, so far as keeping the roads in repair, is secured by a law and most admirably. From the snow plows which you see turned up along the road at intervals I am equally well attested to. This is a duty imposed on the farmers, and only in exceptional cases is any compensation made for it.—Col. George Bliss in New York Times.
